

The Seven Concepts of the Suzuki Philosophy

Every Child Can Learn

Every child can be taught musical ability, given the proper environment. Children do not need to exhibit signs of musical "talent" to be deserving of music lessons.

Ability Develops Early

Start as soon as possible. Even though it is never too late, learning starts with observation beginning at birth. Research shows that babies are listening, even in the womb.

Environment Nurtures Growth

Making music a natural, integral part of daily life will enhance the learning process and foster sensitivity and love of beauty in your child.

Children Learn From One Another

Multi-age classes allow for older children to act as role models. The younger ones learn faster and advance more easily with the examples they see. Older children learn respect, kindness and leadership by helping younger children.

Success Breeds Success

In class, each small step at every level is designed for success. This creates high motivation for your child to learn the next skill.

Parental Involvement is Critical

As a parent, you are your child's first and most important teacher. your participating in class is vital, as well as reinforcing the activities and concepts at home every day.

Encouragement is Essential

Positive reinforcement for every step makes the learning process fun and motivating for your child and for you!

Dr. Richard C. Woolfson, Bright Baby, Understand and Stimulate Your Child's Development.

"Teaching music is not my main purpose. I want to make good citizens. If children hear fine music from the day of their birth and learn to play it, they develop sensitivity, discipline and endurance. They get a beautiful heart."

-Dr. Shinichi Suzuki
